IMPORTANT NOTE: To ensure that your new appliance is installed and operating correctly, The Stove House strongly recommends that customers use a HETAS registered installer, which is our industry's equivalent of CORGI. Most installations of wood burning and multi fuel stoves and systems are subject to the requirements of Building Regulations and by law are notifiable to the Local Authority in your area. HETAS registered installers can self-certificate their work thus avoiding the need for costly and time consuming Building Notice applications to the local Building Control Department.
